TENNIS TOURNAMENT.

Clemson was well represented at the inter-collegiate tennis tournament, at Clinton, last week, by J. C. Caldwell and J. O. Erwin. Though we did not win the cup, they were only defeated by hard and skillful work of their opponents.

On Tuesday afternoon, Erwin played Beach of Wofford in singles, losing both sets by the skillful net playing of his opponent. The first set was 8-6 and the second set was 6-1.

On Wednesday morning, Clemson played Erskine, in doubles winnig from the last year cup winners, the first set being 6-3 and the second set 7-5. On Wednesday afternoon, Carolina's players, by hard work and the skillful playing of a net game, defeated Caldwell and Erwin in doubles. The first set won by Carolina was 6-1, and the second set was 6-4.

TECH 34; CLEMSON 0

The thousands of spectators who witnessed the Clemson-Tech game in Atlanta on Thanksgiving day, saw the Tigers defeated to the tune of 34 to 0, the largest score which has been plied up against them this season. The Tigers played the faster of the two teams, but Tech outweighed them about twenty-six pounds to the man. It was Tech's game from the start, but the Tigers, true to their reputation, fought to the finish.

Patterson was a shining star for Tech. For Clemson, Gilmer and Martin in the line, and Bissell and Connelly in the back field, starred.

A more detailed account of the game will appear in next week's issue of "The Tiger."

THE 1911 ANNUAL.

The prospects for the class of 1911 producing possibly the best annual that has ever been produced at Clemson are very bright indeed. The staff is composed of the most efficient workers in college. These men are already doing considerable work along this line. The staff has made its decision as to the grade of paper, the cover, and the size of the volume. The number of pages will undoubtedly exceed that of any previous volume of the "Taps."

The photographer has been on the campus for the past week, making the pictures for the annual. Mr. Holaday did the photographic work for the 1910 Annual. His work is of the very best quality, but still his prices are not exorbitant; and he is altogether reliable in every respect. So we are sure of having good pictures, which have much to do with the approval that an annual meets with. Quite a large number of clubs have been organized. This will add much to the annual.

Several publishing houses have already sent their representatives to consult with Mr. Keith, the business manager, but no contract has yet been given. It will be remembered that Everett Waadey Company of Richmond, Virginia, has published the annual for the past few years; though it is not yet known who will be the company decided upon by the present staff.

At a recent meeting the staff decided that it would be well to complete the list of editors. The following is now the complete staff, with the exception that more may be added to the art department later: Executive staff: A. M. Saley, editor-in-chief; J. B. Keith, business manager; F. H. Jeter and E. N. Sitton, assistant business managers; and G. D. Gramer, advertising manager. Literary staff: R. W. Freeman, chief; and W. N. Henderson, B. H. Deason, J. A. Dew, F. H. All, D. C. Beaty, O. T. Sanders, H. T. Prosser, and C. B. Faris, assistants. The latter two are members of the Junior class who were elected out of several names submitted by the staff. Art department: P. L. Bissell, chief; and W. R. Connelly and J. R. Fizer, photographers.

Work has begun in earnest and it is the plans of the staff to get the annual out to print by February 15.

HON. LUTHER MANSHIP'S LECTURE.

One of the most enjoyable events of the season here was the third Lyceum attraction given by the Hon. Luther Manship. Mr. Manship is now Lieutenant Governor of Mississippi, but has made several visits to South Carolina and had visited Clemson before; so we knew what a treat was in store for us. The speaker assured us that he had learned to love this great state of ours, that he made frequent visits here, and, furthermore, his first born had won the heart and hand of one of our fair maidens and had carried her to his native state to live; so he justly felt at home with us.

The address was humorous from start to finish, but was permeated with those principles worthy of emulation by all who heard him. He advised us not to think too seriously of life, but to smile and forget all cares and responsibilities. He touched at some length upon the negro problem as it confronts the South. His views agrees with many of ours; that the old slave negro type of manhood is far superior to the society negro of today; that he then could not be depended upon to go into battle amid shot and shell, nor could he be expected to live that ideal life characteristic of the Southern gentleman.

The speaker was applauded frequently throughout his discourse and many were heard to say that his was the best lecture of its kind that they had ever heard.

THE PALMETTO

The last meeting marks an epoch in the history of the old Palmetto. Those who will direct the affairs of the dear old society through her next relay took the offices of responsibility, which were laid down by their predecessors. Friday night the retiring president voiced the feelings of the entire society when he said that the quarter just ended was the best ever known in our history. Those who were installed are: W. N. Henderson, President; W. W. Mickle, Vice President; C. B. Faris, Secretary; B. W. Gettys, Literary Critic; G. H. Zerbst, Prosecuting Critic; E. P. Stule, Censor; J. C. Epps, T. F. Massey, A. H. Ward, and A. C. Turbeville, Reporting Critics.

The new president upon assuming his duties spoke in part as follows: "Fellow members of the Palmetto Literary Society, though it is customary for the president of this society to make an inaugural address, upon entering into the responsible and honorable office of president, I shall not attempt to make an address, or even a flowery talk, but I shall burden you with only a few words. Using the words of the same old story that most of us have heard so long, it is with the greatest heartfelt appreciation of this honored office of president that I stand before you this evening. Truly this is an office which only a few of us can hold, though it is one, which doubtless every one of us would most highly appreciate. I am sure I can think of no honor at Clemson, which is to my mind, so great as that of being elected president of one of the literary societies. Few can appreciate the feeling of joy I experienced last Friday night when you elected me president. Since the first day I joined this society, I have looked admiringly upon the presidents, and longed for the time when I might wear the robe of office!

"As I take this emblem of office a new responsibility rests upon my shoulders. I feel that the success, which this society has enjoyed under the supervision of our last president, must be perpetuated. It rests with you, fellow members, to make for us this quarter a record equally as good as the one just ended. And now in conclusion, fellows, be loyal to the old Palmetto, and let's make our coming up here will be worth while. Remember, it is just what we make it by our honest work. And let us remember that true old saying: 'Men may come and men may go, but I go on forever'. When we pass the trust down to those who follow us, let it never be said of us that we were unfaithful."

Following this was the debate: "Resolved, that Chinese immigration should be restricted by law." This question was indeed the most evenly contested debate heard in our society in a great while. The question was strongly defended on the affirmative by Messrs. Moore, Stanton, and Williams. Messrs. Rast, Heriot, and Epps on the negative made such serious inroads into the smooth speeches of their opponents, that the judges, Messrs. Prosser, Garner and Lawton, gave their decision in favor of the negative. It was theirs by only a fraction of a point, however.

Mr. L. F. Yates as declaimer, and Mr. S. E. Jeffords as essayist, did credit to themselves and to the society.

THE CALHOUN
* * * * *

After the roll call and the adoption of minutes, Mr. Crawford, the retiring president for the first quarter, spoke briefly of the work done during the quarter, and thanked the members for the co-operation given him.

The officers for the second quarter were then installed. Mr. Freeman, the new president, said in part: "Fellow members of the Calhoun Literary Society; words cannot be uttered that would fully express my appreciation for this, which I consider the greatest honor at Clemson College; Indeed it is an honor to wear the insignia of a military office; indeed it is an honor to be a class president; indeed it is an honor to be connected with the publications of Clemson College; but a far greater than any of these is to be president of a literary society. And especially of the old Calhoun, the very name of which should be an inspiration to every one of us. Yea, we should look up to that, (pointing to the painting of Jno. C. Calhoun) and determine that the standard of the Calhoun must be maintained and ever raised higher and higher, for the responsibility rests upon our shoulders.

"Before I came to Clemson College, I had heard of the Calhoun Society. I said that that must be a great society or it is not a credit to its namesake. At that time an ambition was created within me to become president of this society at some time. That ambition has been achieved, but my ambition is yet unsatisfied, and it will never be till we have pulled together to make this the best quarter in the history of the Society. To do less we would fall far short of our duty.

"I want to thank you all for the great honor you have conferred upon me, and assure you that my every effort shall be directed towards the upbuilding of the society, for I realize that honor is not without responsibility. I hope that I shall measure

Thanksgiving—the only holiday we have had since September, and the only one before Christmas.

What about the Tech game?

There are some weak points in the conduct of a few of the boys when a public entertainment is given in the chapel. This applies to only a few who congregate together on such occasions and thoughtlessly disturb the speaker or actors, and debar the audience from a full appreciation of the entertainment. Some seem to think that because of the release from such military discipline as is observed at chapel services there is a justification for such misconduct; but it seems nothing less than right that we should avail ourselves of these opportunities to impress the people of the campus and the visitors that we can be gentlemen, though not kept at attention all the time. When we feel inclined to resort to such misconduct, we should remember that others are disturbed and prevented from appreciating what they have paid to hear and see. We should also remember that such entertainments almost invariably are given to the students, at special rates which others do not have. As said before, this kind of conduct is doubtless due to thoughtlessness on the part of a few who are usually in the gallery on these occasions. Fellows, let's cut this frivolous conduct out; for upon the manner in which we conduct ourselves is based the opinion that others form of us. We are also more likely to get other privileges if we use those which we already have creditably.

College men should always be posted on current events, for opinions of men are usually formed by their judgment of the ability one has to talk intelligently upon current topics. This is only one of the minor reasons why college men should be posted upon the present day events. The success of the Democrats in the recent election is a phase of present times history that no college man can afford not to be well read in. College men are especially mentioned; because, in the next few years, those who are today in college, will be the political and educational leaders of our country. The partial success of the Democratic Party should be a stimulus to all Southern college men to become versed in the present political situation, that they may be able to help perform the duties of reform which is sure to be subsequent to Democratic success.

The students of Clemson College should feel proud of our library where all the best classic literature, novels, and newspapers are available. There is possibly no better supplement to a college course than a voluntary library course. It should be well mapped out by the student himself, systematic, and regular. If every student would spend one-half the time that he now spends unprofitably, in the library, he would add a valuable asset to his education. One can really never be considered educated till he has become able to look up references efficiently. There are a few in the corps that have doubtless never been inside the library. You who are not utilizing your available time in the library, are certainly failing to do yourself justice, and are wasting your opportunity, to your own individual disadvantage.

EXCHANGES

Our exchanges for the week are very numerous; but, in glancing over them, one at a military school, would naturally turn to the "Battalion," the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas' periodical, with a great degree of expectancy.

We are struck, at the outset, at the interest manifested in athletics at that institution. They, as we, have tried class athletics; but have found many objections to such a mode of ball. But not content to stop where they are, they have organized and are going to play the Battalions. Let each battalion play the other battalions. We believe this to be a good mode of college ball and should stimulate a strong friendly rivalry between the battalions, and keep the spirit down between the classes.

The Scientific Agricultural Society, which seems fully awake at that institution, is a great thing for any A. & M. college; and we think that more of our sister colleges might get together in such a society, and discuss with great benefit the practical problems along agricultural lines. We find this periodical a bright and newsy paper, indeed; and can only predict a bright future for both the college and the "Battalion."

The Ring-turn Phi, the student periodical of Washington & Lee University, is noted among our exchanges for this week. The first page is devoted principally to the write up of one of their victories in football, which gives us a clear idea of what they can accomplish along athletic lines. Each of the classes has good write ups in their class contests for the championship—though it seems as if the juniors were the winners.

What strikes us most, is the space in the paper devoted to the alumni notes. In these notes, we notice many of the alumni are mentioned, telling where they are and what they are doing. We think that a periodical is wise in giving this space to the alumni, as it will undoubtedly help the alumni to be more loyal to the college—and that is the great end to be desired by all colleges. We think that our periodical will do well to devote more time and space in giving to the students more of what the former students are doing.

O. G. (to sentinel): "What would you do in case Caesar's Ghost should come ambling down the hall?"

Sentry: "I'd call the corporal of the guard and report it."

O. G.: "You would? I'd throw down that gun and run like blazes."

CLASSES

SENIOR.

The past week has been one of unusual activity. Our members have all been quite busy, organizing and having photographs taken of various clubs, etc., for "Taps, 1911." Of course, we are all united in the effort to make the 1911 Taps the best in the history of the college. We have the material; now all that is desired is that every member of the class, and of the entire corps, shall aid in the work in every possible way.

Our deepest sympathy goes out to "Bear" Crawford. According to his own statement, he has posed so many times for the photographer this past week, each time straining his facial expression trying to look unnatural (handsome) that he never expects to look like his former self again.

Capt. W. N. Henderson, a member of the National Guards of South Carolina, was called to Columbia on guard duty this week.

Prof. and Mrs. Nourse entertained the members of the second section at a delightful Harlequin party on Friday night, November 18. The young ladies present were Miss Helen Brackett and Miss Floride Calhoun.

Mr. "Gene" Sitton stays at Clemson as little as possible. If one desires to see him on Saturdays or Sundays, in all probability, he can be found at or near the attractive little city of Pendleton.

On Friday evening, November 18, the Senior Dancing Club gave an informal dance. The following were present: Mr. F. H. Jeter with Miss Sadie McFarle; Mr. J. A. Dew with Miss Neila Sloan; Mr. C. R. Gillam with Miss Helen Brackett; Mr. J. W. Harrison with Miss Elsie Stribling; Mr. L. C. McClure with Miss Lila Stribling; Mr. B. B. Harris with Miss Floride Calhoun; Mr. J. B. Keith with Miss Cora Garner; Mr. W. M. Haynesworth with Miss Leila Doyle; Mr. R. H. Walker with Miss Marguerite Montgomery; Mr. Fred Schroder with Miss Adelaide Montgomery; Mr. T. D. Williams with Miss Agnes Corbertt; and Mr. J. E. Kirby with Miss Leize Stribling. Stags: Messrs. Lykes, F. W., Arthur, Gettys, Beaty, Milling, McCord, Boone, Davis, Tobin, Cooper, Sitton, Woodward, Connelly, Head, Hanckel, Garrett, Wall, Stevens, Gilmore, Sumner, Epps, Ginn, and Lawton.

That the Junior class lacks the spirit of unity that it should have was clearly shown last week when the class picture was made. Out of about 100 members of the class, only 43 came out for the class picture. Of course some were kept away by unavoidable circumstances, but others did not come out for the picture because of a feeling of enmity for the class.

Now, it is impossible for the class to be a success as a class as long as these feelings of enmity exist among its members. We all wish a successful class, and to have it we must have a united class. So let every man put away his personal feelings in this, and unite and strive from now on to make the class of 1912 one of Clemson's most successful classes.

Messrs. H. T. Prosser and C. B. Faris have been elected as members of the 1911 Annual staff. These are two of our best men, and we are glad to see their ability recognized in this way. We feel sure that their work on the Annual will be a credit both to themselves and to the Annual.

Mr. D. T. Hardin went to Belton last Friday, where he stood the examination for an appointment to West Point. While it would be a great loss to our class for Hardin to leave Clemson, yet we would be glad to have him receive the appointment.

Mr. J. C. Caldwell has returned to college, after a week at the tennis tournament at Clinton.

SOPHOMORE.

The members of the Sophomore class have been dreaming of boxes loaded with good things to eat for a long time, and now it seems that our dreams have come true. Thanksgiving is upon us, and we are all eager for the great game in Atlanta to be played, and we hope, won.

We are very sorry that several of our classmates have been forced to leave us on account of sickness. These men are M. A. Wilson, M. A. Laney, J. E. Cottingham, and B. T. Lauham. We wish them a speedy recovery, and we hope that they will return to us soon.

HOW TO KILL A COLLEGE PAPER.

1. Do not subscribe. Borrow a classmate's paper—just be a sponge.
2. Look at the advertisements and trade with the other fellow—be a chump.
3. Never hand in a news item and be sure to criticize everything in the paper—be a coxcomb.
4. If you are a member of the staff, play tennis or society when you ought to be attending to business—be a shirk.
5. Tell your neighbors that you can get more news for less money—be a squeeze.
6. If you can't hustle and make the paper a success—be a corpse.

Get the idea!—Ex.

Corporal Frampton (at dinner): "These potatoes are healthful to eat."

Rat Williams: "I don't think so; they contain too much corn starch."

"I thank you gentlemen."

The regular exercises were then taken up. Mr. W. W. Foster gave a declamation entitled, "The Deathbed of Benedict Arnold." Mr. A. M. Salley, the orator, spoke on the decline of the military spirit in the United States. The essayist and the reader were absent.

The query, Resolved: "That college students who play summer baseball should not be debarred from amateur standing," was ably discussed on both sides. Affirmative, Bell, T. E., Ross, F. L., Kilgo, P. R. Negative, Anderson, G. M., Lagar, J. T., Thornton, C. C. The judges decided in favor of the former, while the house decided in favor of the latter.

The following committees were appointed by the president: Query Committee—Bell, T. E., Davis, T. F., Thornton, C. C.; Hall Committee—Salley, A. M., Ross, F. L., Douthit, J. B.; Board of Directors—Fant, G. C., Cooper, H. P., Harvey, H. W.; Appeal Committee—Altman, L. B., Goldfinch, A. K., Lawrence, B. F., Rowell, N. K., and Seal, J. L.; Chaplain—Deason, B. H.; Sergeant-at-arms—Knox, J. S.; Asst. Sergeant-at-arms—Barksdale, J. C.

After attending to some miscellaneous business, the society adjourned.

THE COLUMBIAN.

* * * * *

Mr. F. H. All, the newly elected president, made a stirring inaugural address. He hopes to see the society do its best work from now until the Christmas holidays.

Mr. E. S. Jenkins gave us a creditable declamation. This was Mr. Jenkins' first attempt as a society speaker, and he did so well that it seemed as if he had been one of us all the time.

Mr. Petrie gave a long list of interesting current events.

The debate was hinged on the question whether the government should drain our swamps in preference to irrigating the Western plains. Messrs. Byrd, Altman, and Jenkins spoke for the affirmative; while Messrs. Bethea, Parker, and Rizer discussed the negative. Messrs. Hayden, Harrison, Stickley, and Jenkins brought out some fine points in irregular debate. The house voted that the affirmative won; but the judges gave an opposite decision.

All interest will soon center on the coming contest. The preliminary for declamation takes place in December; while the annual celebration takes place in January.

Y. M. C. A.

Prof. Gear, of Furman University, who was to have spoken to the Y. M. C. A. last Sunday evening, could not come, as he had to remain over in Greenville for the day; so he got Prof. Cox, of the same place, to take his place. Prof. Cox made a very inspiring address, and it was enjoyed by all who attended. His subject was "The Right Attitude."

In the introductory of his address, Prof. Cox defined "attitude" and "right", as he was aiming to consider them. He said that "attitude" meant to have a definite purpose and to use definite means to accomplish that purpose; and that "right" meant to be courageous. He then discussed his subject, as applying to college boys, under the following heads: (1) a courageous attitude to retreat; (2) a courageous attitude inactive; (3) a courageous attitude defensive; and (4) a courageous attitude aggressive.

It was very gratifying to see so many boys out Sunday evening; and, to be sure, we always welcome them to all of these meetings.
